Monthly Commentary

Global Transition returned +0.03% in December, 0.2 pp. lower than the benchmark (MSCI ACWI).

Global equity markets were generally positive in December, albeit with mixed performance across markets. US indices were roughly flat to negative, while Europe - and in particular the Nordics - delivered strong returns alongside Asia and selected emerging markets. Key market themes included monetary policy expectations, as the US Fed cut rates by 25 bps with some hawkish commentary, and speculation of a bubble in AI-related investments.

These themes played out in our portfolio as well, with the biggest positive contributions coming from Nordic companies such as Alfa Laval, Cadeler, Tomra and Atlas Copco. In addition, Synopsys had a strong month following Nvidia's USD 2 billion strategic investment into the company at the beginning of the month followed by a solid Q4 earnings report later in December. The largest detractors were predominantly US names, in addition to Voltronic which saw a meaningful pullback following several analyst downgrades due to negative impacts from tariff uncertainties and FX losses.
